

ESC Creation

About the NSW Energy Savings Scheme

The Energy Savings Scheme (ESS) is a NSW-based mandatory energy efficiency scheme which commenced on 1 July 2009. The principal objective of the ESS is to create a financial incentive for organisations to reduce the consumption of electricity by encouraging energy savings activities.

By implementing energy efficiency measures, you may be eligible to create Energy Savings Certificates (ESCs) that can be sold on the market for profit.

The ESS is based on the trading of ESCs in New South Wales. One ESC represents one tonne of carbon dioxide saved through reductions in electricity consumption.

Accredited Certificate Providers

ESCs are supplied by Accredited Certificate Providers (ACPs) who are able to create ESCs related to eligible activities that improve energy efficiency in commercial and industrial settings.

Demand Manager is an ACP for lighting and HVAC upgrades and our service is aimed to make it easier for your organisation to participate in the ESS.

Demand Manager is not affiliated with any energy company, product supplier or manufacturer, our aim is to maximise your returns.

Recognised Energy Savings Activities

To be eligible for the creation of ESCs, activities must have been implemented on or after 1 July 2008 at a site in New South Wales.

Eligible activities include:

Modifying equipment or usage of equipment (including installing additional components);

Installing more efficient equipment;

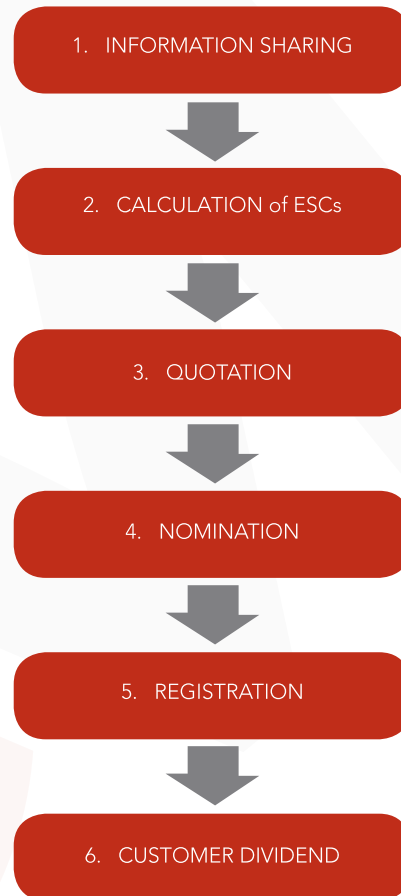

Removing End-User Equipment that results in reduced electricity consumption.

Create ESCs the Easy Way...

Demand Manager is accepting applications from organisations to create ESCs for lighting and HVAC based efficiency upgrades.

Demand Manager's process is a very simple one-stop-shop approach which manages all ESC creation related activities including application and administration fees, ongoing record keeping requirements, any dealings with the Scheme Administrator, and trading of ESCs.

The process of creating ESCs is as follows:

Demand Manager structures its fees on a no-win, no-fee basis with no upfront costs or charges. We will only charge fees once ESCs have been created, based on a percentage of the ESCs created.
